Member Renewals... feed your soul

As you all know, memberships were way up last season, thank you for your show of support of the largest performing arts centre in the East Kootenays. Renewals for some of these memberships have been somewhat slow in coming, however and we urge you to renew your membership as soon as possible and, at whatever level suits you.

Between September '05 and the end of January the Key City Theatre Society membership lists will have 67 expired names on paper. Please respond to your reminder notices as soon as they come in the mail, or call the office for your renewal date.

Although arts and culture provide great nourishment for the heart and soul, we, like any other business must follow the bottom line...Spend less than we make and put some away for a rainy day.

The third lobby TV has now been bought and will soon be mounted in the upstairs gallery. We are looking also to upgrade the in-house camera for a more close up look at the stage through our lobby monitors. Thanks for supporting these and other upgrades!

CIBC Wood Gundy
presents...

Ballet BC's "Company B"
(featuring music of the Andrew sisters)

Paul Taylor's seminal piece of Americana, recalling the turbulent days of the 1940s.

In his choreography, Taylor creates little worlds which exist in the bubble of time between the curtain's rise and fall; worlds distinctive not just in their physical rules of how people and things move but in the human societies they create and the strengths and foibles they invite us to experience.

"This program combines the vitality of Paul Taylor's choreography with the pristine beauty of Jiri Kylian's Petite Mort, and the sexual energy of Dominique Dumais' the weight of absence. This is the perfect date-night repertoire for newcomers to dance and promises to be a satisfying experience for all dance-lovers."
